About

Brass Phantoms are a five piece Post-Indie Rock band from Dublin. The band consists of Ryan Costello (vocals & bass), Greg Whelan (guitar & backing vocals), James O'Connell (guitar), Adam McCall (drums & backing vocals), and new addition, Cullen Heavey (keys & backing vocals). The group is set to release new music and are excited to return to the live scene.

In 2017 Brass Phantoms released their single Waiting Up. The track garnered widespread airplay across Irish Radio on the likes of RTE 2FM, 89FM, 97.9fm, Trinity FM, and Radio Nova, as well as prestigious international features on the likes of BBC Radio 6 with Steve Lamacq and Spotify curated playlists. Eager to keep this momentum in motion, the band's followup singles Indigo and Dropout acquired esteemed press coverage from the likes of Cash Magazine, The Irish Times, The Press and Journal, as well as the group being Irishweekend band on Notes of the Week on The Piano in the UK.

No stranger to the live scene, Brass Phantoms have headlined shows in established venues such as Whelan's and The Workshop Club. They have also played across the country from the likes of Other Voices and are gearing up for their second extensive tour of independent Irish venues this summer. The group were the main support for Cherry on the Wall and John Butler, performing live proper & featuring at MONDO Festival in New York last year, and were listed as one of the festival's top acts to see. Following this, the group embarked on a tour of the UK.

So far, 2018 has seen Brass Phantoms sign a worldwide distribution deal with Believe Digital and receive an invitation to perform at Canadian Music Week. The band's single City Of Wines was used to promote Irish television coverage of the UEFA Champions League this year, and they are back out on the road and ready to keep growing with their upcoming music. (Don't tell us it's sort of a hint though)
